Conservation Scorecard

You care about Colorado's environmental legacy.

DO YOUR LEGISLATORS?

The Conservation Scorecard provides an overview of the 2019 legislative session and the environment. In it you will find factual, nonpartisan information on the priorities of the conservation community and a record of how each member of the state legislature voted on those priority bills that affect Colorado's land, water, climate, and communities.

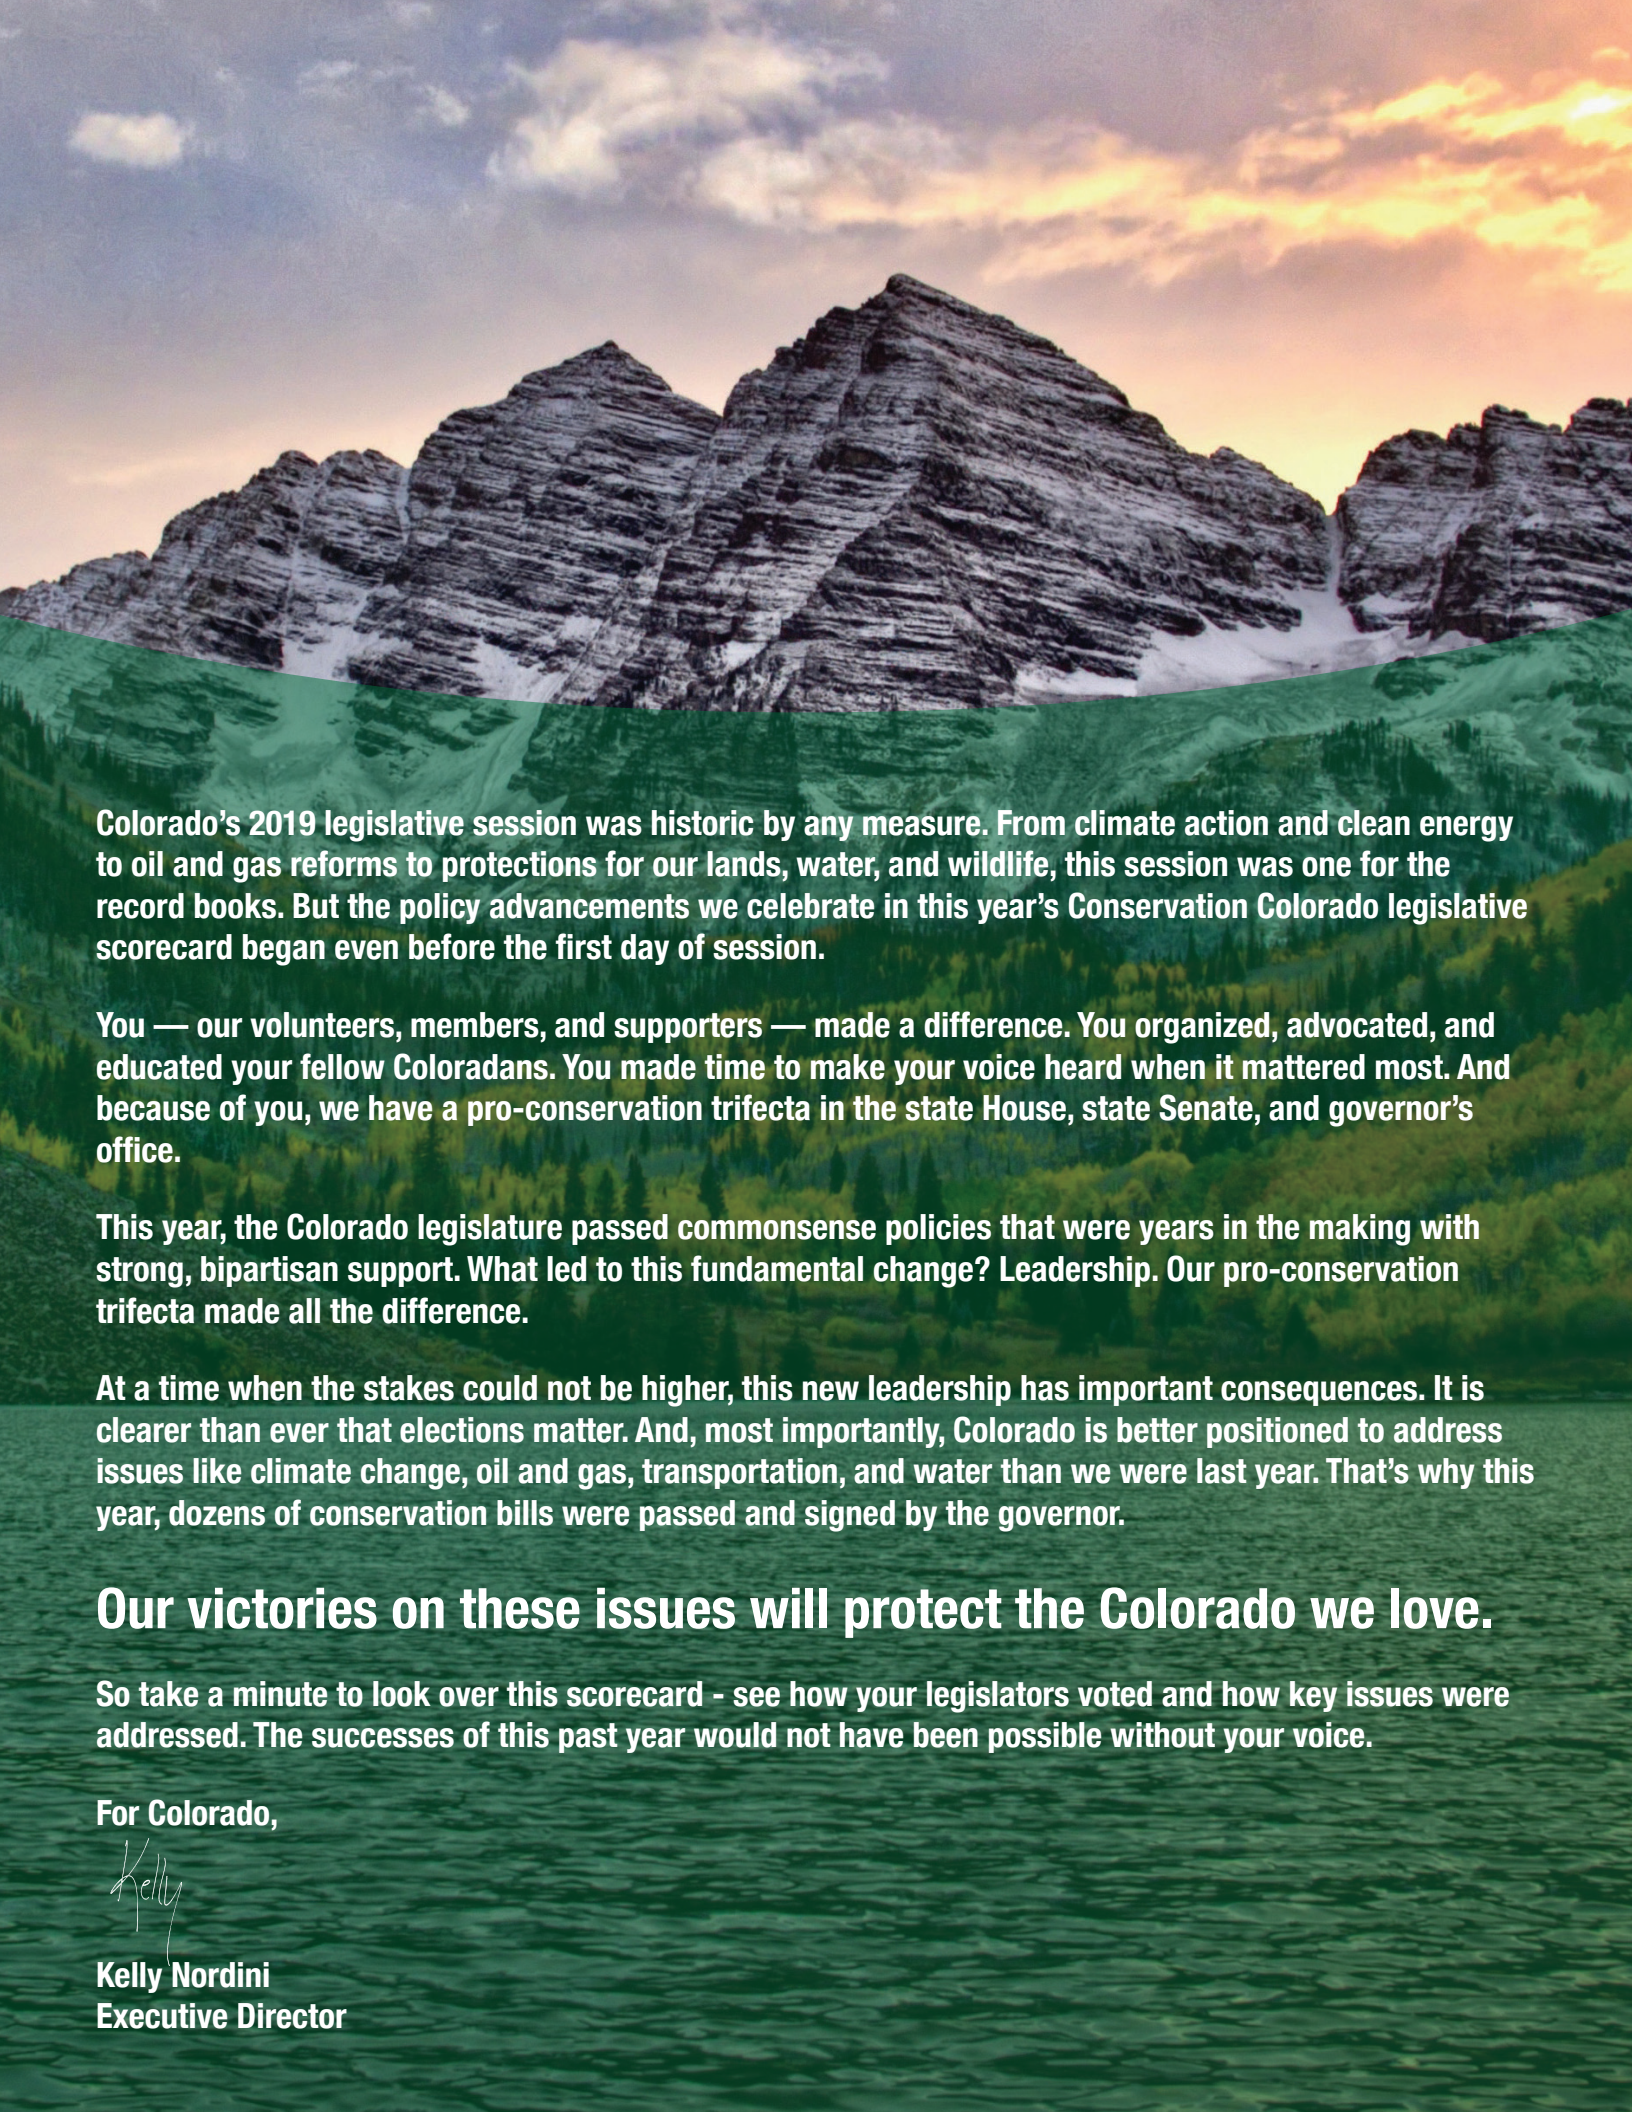

Find out how your elected officials voted, and see how well their votes align with your conservation values. Then call or write to your legislators and let them know that you're paying attention to their environmental scores!

Conservation Colorado

The future is worth the fight

Conservation Colorado turns conservation values into real change for Colorado.

Colorado's 2019 legislative session was historic by any measure. From climate action and clean energy to oil and gas reforms to protections for our lands, water, and wildlife, this session was one for the record books. But the policy advancements we celebrate in this year's Conservation Colorado legislative scorecard began even before the first day of session.

You — our volunteers, members, and supporters — made a difference. You organized, advocated, and educated your fellow Coloradans. You made time to make your voice heard when it mattered most. And because of you, we have a pro-conservation trifecta in the state House, state Senate, and governor's office.

This year, the Colorado legislature passed commonsense policies that were years in the making with strong, bipartisan support. What led to this fundamental change? Leadership. Our pro-conservation trifecta made all the difference.

At a time when the stakes could not be higher, this new leadership has important consequences. It is clearer than ever that elections matter. And, most importantly, Colorado is better positioned to address issues like climate change, oil and gas, transportation, and water than we were last year. That's why this year, dozens of conservation bills were passed and signed by the governor.

Our victories on these issues will protect the Colorado we love.

So take a minute to look over this scorecard - see how your legislators voted and how key issues were addressed. The successes of this past year would not have been possible without your voice.

For Colorado,

Kelly Nordini

Issue Areas

- Climate & Clean Energy: Poor air quality, extreme weather, and other increasing impacts of climate change are threatening what we love most about our state. Colorado's leaders made tremendous steps in moving our state closer to a just and equitable clean energy future by working to pass a suite of nationally leading climate and clean energy policies.
- Oil & Gas: For years, industry profits—not public health—were regulators' required top priority when it came to oil and gas development in Colorado. This year, the legislature fought for increased safety of our communities and the environment and to hold the industry accountable. The legislature passed sweeping and historic oil and gas reforms, ensuring that health and safety always come first.
- Transportation: Vehicle emissions are one of the largest sources of air pollution in our state, making it harder for Coloradans—especially frontline communities—to breathe and lead healthy lives. Colorado's leaders worked this year to electrify Colorado's transportation fleet and improve our air.
- Lands, Water, & Wildlife: From city parks to mountain peaks, Coloradans' love for our outdoors runs deep. But our wild places and cascading waters contribute more than recreation opportunities, they're the lifeblood of our economies, communities, and Colorado way of life. This year the legislature passed a collection of policies that will preserve our lands and waters for generations.

CLIMATE & CLEAN ENERGY

Colorado's 2019 legislative session will go down in history as one of the most transformative for climate action of any state in the nation.

Bill Descriptions

1 HOUSE BILL 1261 THE CLIMATE ACTION PLAN

Dramatically reducing carbon pollution is key to Colorado swiftly acting on climate change and doing our part to leave a healthy environment for future generations. Colorado's Climate Action Plan puts our state on a path towards a zero-carbon future by setting science-based targets to reduce Colorado's carbon pollution 26 percent by 2025, 50 percent by 2030, and 90 percent by 2050 relative to 2005 levels.

Signed by the Governor: May 30, 2019

Pro-Environment Vote | YES

2 HOUSE BILL 1231 ENERGY AND WATER EFFICIENCY STANDARDS

Efficiency standards drive innovation while saving Coloradans money and reducing pollution. This bill sets new energy and water efficiency standards for many household appliances sold in our state, benefitting Colorado consumers, businesses and our environment. They are some of the strongest standards in the nation.

Bill Sponsors: Representatives Meg Froelich and Cathy Kipp, Senators Pete Lee and Kevin Priola

3 HOUSE BILL 1260 ENERGY EFFICIENT BUILDING CODES

With new development comes new opportunities to utilize the most efficient technology available. And with Colorado's rapid growth, that can mean big energy savings for residents and municipalities. This bill updates the minimum energy code for the construction of buildings so that new homes built in Colorado will be more efficient when it comes to heating, cooling, and power usage.

4 HOUSE BILL 1314 PROMOTING A JUST TRANSITION

As Colorado makes its transition to a carbon-free economy, we must ensure the communities and workers most affected by these economic changes are not left behind. This bill addresses the needs of workers and communities transitioning toward a clean energy future by creating the first state office of just transition in the nation as well as setting up the opportunity for grants, workforce training, and other re-employment programs to individuals and communities currently dependent on the coal industry.

Bill Sponsors: Representatives KC Becker and Rochelle Galindo, Senators Faith Winter and Kerry Donovan
House Vote: Passed 40-24 | Senate Vote: Passed 19-16
Signed by the Governor: May 30, 2019

Pro-Environment Vote | YES

5 SENATE BILL 236 PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION REFORM

The largest source of carbon pollution in our state comes from generating electricity. This bill will help Colorado's Public Utilities Commission—the regulatory body responsible for determining which resources to use to power Colorado's grid — drastically reduce these emissions by directing utilities in the state to generate more carbon-free electricity and consider the "social cost" of carbon when planning future energy projects. This cost, which measures the dollar value of long-term damage caused by carbon pollution, will allow utilities to evaluate the significant economic, health, and environmental benefits of continuing to invest in clean energy projects.

Bill Sponsors: Senators Leroy Garcia and Stephen Fenberg, Representatives Chris Hansen and KC Becker
House Vote: Passed 40-24 | Senate Vote: Passed 20-15

NATIONAL POLICY LEADERSHIP

Colorado's 2019 legislative session will go down in history as one of the most transformative for climate action of any state in the nation.

Our elected leaders delivered on their commitments to Colorado voters. More than a dozen bills to protect our climate and drive clean energy deployment were passed this session.

This leadership was in direct response to Colorado's independent voters who selected "energy and the environment" as the most important issue in their choice for governor in 2018.

The new policies that our leaders passed include:

- Economy-wide climate targets of reducing carbon pollution at least 26 percent by 2025, 50 percent by 2030, and 90 percent by 2050;
- Strong safeguards in our new climate policies to address lower-income, rural, and disproportionately impacted communities;
- Establishing the first "just transition" office in the country;
- Support for utilities, municipalities, and other entities to move towards 100 percent clean electricity;
- A consideration for the "social cost of carbon" when utilities plan for the future;
- Direction to state regulators to reduce methane pollution in oil and gas production; and
- Some of the highest appliance energy and water efficiency standards in the country.

Thanks to you, Colorado is a leader for the nation once again on fighting climate change.

OIL & GAS

Sometimes a single bill reshapes a policy landscape. Such is the case with the 2019 legislative session's landmark oil and gas bill, Senate Bill 181, Colorado's comprehensive oil and gas reforms.

Bill Description

6 SENATE BILL 181 COMPREHENSIVE OIL AND GAS REFORMS

Year after year, Colorado's oil and gas regulations fell behind the pace of development, leaving our communities and environment to suffer the consequences. These landmark reforms put the health and safety of workers, residents, and our environment ahead of oil and gas industry profits.

Bill Sponsors: Senators Stephen Fenberg and Mike Foote, Representatives KC Becker and Yadira Caraveo

House Vote: Passed 36-28 | Senate Vote: Passed 19-16

Signed by Governor: April 16th, 2019

Pro-Environment Vote | YES

BREAKING THE LOGJAM

Thanks to the visionary leadership of our pro-conservation trifecta, Colorado law now:

- Refocuses the mission of the Colorado Oil and Gas Conservation Commission to prioritize health, safety, and the environment over industry profits;
- Empowers local governments to have a stronger say by clarifying basic powers such as zoning and noise limitations and allowing local oversight and enforcement of operations;
- Addresses the growing climate, air, water, and wildlife impacts of oil and gas development across the state including increasing regulations for methane (a dangerous air pollutant that is a significant contributor to climate change); and
- Better protects property owners from forced pooling.

The bill's provisions were nearly a decade in the making, comprised of the 22 bills that were defeated in recent years because of industry opposition.

This year, that all changed. Today, Coloradans can breathe easier knowing that our state is on track to put the health and safety of workers and residents, as well as protections for our environment, ahead of oil and gas industry profits.

TRANSPORTATION

Our state's transportation system is a central part of everyday life, as Coloradans travel not just to work but to the mountains and other landscapes to escape and play. And as Colorado continues to grow and invest in our transportation system, we have an opportunity to reconsider how we connect our state.

Bill Descriptions

7

HOUSE BILL 1159 ELECTRIC VEHICLE TAX CREDITS

Colorado is one of the best states in the country to buy an electric vehicle thanks to tax credits that make them more affordable. This bill extends these tax credits to 2025, continuing to help Coloradans save money on fuel, transform our economy, and clean up our air.

Bill Sponsors: Representatives Sonya Jaquez Lewis and Matt Gray, Senator Jessie Danielson

House Vote: Passed 40-25 | Senate Vote: Passed 20-14

Signed by the Governor: May 31, 2019

8

SENATE BILL 77 ELECTRIC VEHICLE INFRASTRUCTURE

Getting more electric vehicles on the road—be they buses, trucks, or cars—is crucial to reducing carbon pollution and accelerating Colorado's transition to a clean energy future. This bill expands Colorado's electric infrastructure by allowing utility companies to own and operate charging stations as part of their regulated services, making electric vehicles more accessible to everyday Coloradans, and cleaning up air pollution, which disproportionately impacts frontline communities.

Bill Sponsors: Senators Kevin Priola and Angela Williams, Representative Chris Hansen

House Vote: Passed 39-26 | Senate: Passed 20-15

Signed by the Governor: May 31, 2019

Pro-Environment Vote | YES

CHARGING AHEAD

Transportation is a key cause of air pollution because vehicles emit dangerous toxins like ozone, nitrous oxides, and volatile organic compounds. This pollution affects frontline communities – including young people, the elderly, and communities of color – the most. And, transportation is the number-one source of carbon pollution in the country.

In 2019, Colorado's leaders took major steps to clean up our transportation system. The year began with Governor Polis issuing his first executive order, which will result in more electric vehicles on the road as well as funding from the VW settlement to go towards cleaner buses. And our legislature passed a suite of important transportation policies, including funding for multimodal transportation infrastructure, allowing utilities to invest in electric vehicle infrastructure, and making electric vehicles cheaper to purchase. Together these policies will help all Coloradans breathe easier.

While Colorado has previously been called one of the best states in which to own, drive, or ride in an electric vehicle, now it's even better.

LANDS, WATER & WILDLIFE

A whopping 70 percent of Colorado voters consider themselves to be “conservationists,” and so they expect their elected officials to protect the places they love.

Bill Descriptions

9

HOUSE BILL 1026

SUPPORTING COLORADO PARKS AND WILDLIFE

Colorado has a long history of leadership in natural resource management and outdoor recreation thanks in large part to agencies like Colorado Parks and Wildlife (CPW). But without adequate authorities, regulations that protect our lands and wildlife are hard to enforce. For CPW it has been at least 15 years — and in some cases, decades — since many of the agency’s fines have been adjusted. This bill updates CPW’s fine structure to discourage illegal activity, ensuring responsible recreation and ecosystem health for all Coloradans.

HOUSE BILL 1264

CONSERVATION EASEMENT IMPROVEMENTS

Colorado’s lands are central to our outdoor heritage and recreation economy, and conservation easements that protect private lands play an important role in preserving the state we love. This measure supports further conservation of the open spaces, waterways, and wildlife habitat that define our state by extending and improving upon Colorado’s conservation easement program.

HOUSE BILL 1050

WATER SAVINGS THROUGH XERISCAPING

In Colorado’s dry climate, we need increased water conservation, more flexible water management, and better protections to secure our water future. This bill promotes water-efficient landscaping while ensuring that property managers and managers of park districts and open space adhere to water conservation requirements.

Bill Sponsors: Representative Brianna Titone, Senators Kevin Priola and Faith Winter

12

HOUSE BILL 1113

MINING REFORM

More than 1,600 miles of Colorado’s rivers are polluted from toxic mining pollution and runoff. This bill ensures that Colorado’s water and communities are protected from future environmental and economic impacts of hard-rock mining by requiring hard-rock mining companies to prove they can pay to treat polluted water prior to operating a new mine. It also eliminates the practice of self-bonding, which put taxpayers on the hook for mining pollution.

Bill Sponsors: Representatives Dylan Roberts and Barbara McLachlan, Senator Kerry Donovan

House Vote: Passed 46-18 | Senate Vote: Passed 22-13

Signed by the Governor: April 30, 2018

13

HOUSE BILL 1218

INSTREAM FLOWS

More than one in ten Americans—some 40 million people—depend on water from the Colorado River Basin. This bill would have helped keep our rivers and streams healthy and flowing while meeting our water needs by allowing more water to stay in them via expansion of Colorado’s incredibly successful “instream flow” program.

Bill Sponsors: Representative Dylan Roberts, Senator Kerry Donovan

House Vote: Passed 41-22 | Senate Vote: Failed in Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee

OUR COLORADO WAY OF LIFE

This year, the Colorado legislature passed commonsense lands, water, and wildlife policies that were years in the making with strong, bipartisan support.

One of the best examples of this was a bill to protect our rivers and streams from mining pollution. Legislators had tried to pass this bill previously, but continued to run into roadblocks. And, a bill to better protect private lands with conservation easements had seen compromise in previous years but this year a strong bill passed.

In 2019 under pro-conservation leadership, several key lands, water, and wildlife policies became law. And these bills were often passed with the support of legislators whose districts are reliant on these issues as economic drivers.
